After years of live performance and touring, seasoned songwriter Carmin Turco officially arrived on the New York music scene in 1999 with the release of his debut album, Angel, to some critical acclaim and earning him the Sennhesier Songwriter of the Year award. His second release, Tricycle, brought him increased notoriety and reached sufficient national sales and radio airplay to be eligible for a Grammy Nomination (a great success for any independent artist).

Early in 2002, Carmin wrote and recorded the single "Back On Track" with veteran producer Bob Casale (Devo) and performed nationally with tour support provided by MasterCard, Merrill Lynch and Amtrak - a tour which included a performance on Broadway at the historic Hudson Theater.

Having studied songwriting and performance at The Actor's Institute in New York City, Carmin was a featured performer at the International Shakespeare Festival in Toronto, Canada and continues to tour internationally. The industry press has described his musical performances and songwriting this way:
